RAILROAD BONDS.

We beg attention to the Bond of the Spartanburg and Union Railroad, which will be found in another column. The Bond has appended to it the inter-cat coupons. This publication is made for the pur-pose of informing those contemplating investments of the nature of the security they will have, and the simple mode of possessing themselves of the in-terest somi-annually. Pay $400, and the Agenta for the sale of Bonds in Spartanburg, Messrs. Fos-ter & Judd, will have one of these $500 bonds filled up. When the first half-year's interest is due, say in July, 1857, all the holder has to do is to take or send his coupon for that date to the Bank of the State and get his interest. It is equal to a check, and involves no more trouble.

We also commend to public attention the notice of John L. Young, President of the road. He appeals to both pride and interest. Shall these considerations be successful? We shall see.

ACCIDENT. We are sorry to know that our barber. Albert Henderson, met with a sad accident on Monday evening on this wise: Several young men were scated in his shop, when a revolver dropped on the floor, discharging a ball into the foot of the poor fellow. Surgical aid was promptly procured, but all efforte thus far have failed to extract the ball, which is lodged in the bones of the instep. Fears are entertained that the foot must come off.

BAILROAD BONDS.

The Spartanburg and Union Railroad Compan now offer their 500 Dollar Bonds, bearing 7 per cent, interest, payable every six months, to Stockholders for $400 cash. The investment will pay an interest equivalent to 101 per cent. per annum

The amount already expended on the road exceeds Eight Handred Thousand Dollars-all of which is mortgaged to sceure the holders of the Bonds we now propose to sell. The cash arising from the sale of Bonds will be invested in Iron, and laid on the track; so that the money we borrow will go to increase the security.

The price offered for the use of your cash-(as well as the other advantages that will flow to you from the construction of your Road)-should be an inducement to change some one of your investments for at least one or two of our Bonds.

Let each stockholder, or friend, now show as

Bonds, which we will invest in Iron, and lay on the track; and if you increase in confidence, so will we increase in the construction and extension of our Road until the work is finished.

Delay is a serious inconvenience to all concernd then at once wake up, and do all our power to complete the enterprise.

Mesers. Foster & Judd are authorized Agents for the sale of Bonds at Spartanburg.

JOHN L. YOUNG, President. NOVEMBER 8, 1856.

PRESSYTERIAN SYNOD. - We learn that this body at its late meeting accepted the resignation of Dr. Palmer as Professor in the Theological Seminary in Columbia, and elected Dr. Adger in his place Dr. Palmer expects to leave for New Orleans in a few days, to take charge of the Church of which he has been chosen Pastor in that city. The friends of the Institution may have full confidence that the accession of Dr. Adger will secure it against detriment from the transfer of Dr. Palmer,

The meeting is said to have been unusually large -so too of the amount of business before it. The next meeting will be at Laurens C. II.

ANOTHER SLAVERY OUTRAGE.—Some time since we received from the office of the New York Brother Jonathan a sheet containing the portraits of the Presidential candidates-Buck and Breck at the head. This picture we turned over to our Imp, who stuck it up in our composing room. No sooner, however, were the returns received on Saturday morning last, than that evil spirit inherent in his class vented itself upon Fremont and Fillmore, with their respective supporters -- Dayton and Donelson by daubing them over with a strong coating of printers' ink. Of a verity they are now Black Republicans, and presenting as grotesque an appearance as the woollies!-headed buck niggers in the North, and in the picture, as in the country, Buchanan and Breckinridge have them under.

Rev. Dudley A. Tyng, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, Philadelphia, it will be recollected, introduced politics into his pulpit. The Vestry remonstrated, and requested his resignation. He appealed to the communicants to decide. The vote took place on the 4th instant, and was as follows: For the Vestry 57; for Mr. Tyng 44; one blank. The rector, in obedience to promise, is strations. It matters not that a proposed measure

Prof. Hedrick, late of the University of North Carolina, attended an educational Convention a, Salisbury on the 28th ult. His visit led to disgrace ful scenes. He was burnt in effigy and hooted and hissed most justily. The object was to drive the professor from the town. Quiet was restored.

From the several extras issued from the Spar-m office most of our readers are aware that Butan office most of our readers are aware that Buchanan and Breekinridge, the Democratio nominees of the Gneinnati Convention, have been elected to the Presidency and Vice Presidency of the United States for four years from the 4th of March, 1857. We congratulate the South—the country—on this result; in smuch as it affords proof of a general conservatism among the people of the Union, and gives breathing time to the South to determine dispassionately what measures of security shall be adopted for the future. We have no idea that the strife is over, but we have now more definition. and its enemies-between slavery and no-slavery The Democratic party, as far as we are now able o judge, will have possession of the Executive and Legislative Departments of the General Government, and now is the auspicious moment-apart rom passion and political excitement—coolly to anproach the solution of the problem whether this Union shall be continued as a blessing to all the States, or whether power shall be peacefully ourrendered up to the several States for the construction of homogeneous governments. The South cannot and ought not remain insecure. The faciliwith which her rights have been interpreted and legislated away must be checked, and this check can only be given by express amendment of the

We propose, therefore, that the Legislatures of he Southern States, by solemn sanction of law, convene State Conventions, which shall depute and ommission Delegates to a General Congress of the Slaveholding States, to determine what amend ments are necessary to the great compact of Union o guard the peace and integrity of our section, and render us secure in rights and property. When the labors of this body are completed, let the amendments agreed on be proposed to the Con federacy. If adopted, the Union will still remain intact, with reasonable hope of peaceful endurance If rejected, let Conventions of the two sections regotiate a division of the national liabilities and assetts, and quietly dissolve the Union, without further animosity or strife.

Since the above was written we find in the Charleston Mercury a letter of four columns from Hon, R. Barnwell Rhett, addressed to Governor Adams. In that letter we find the following paragraph, in which the very same idea is expressed: "The States, in their sovereign capacity, adopted "The States, in their sovereign espacity, adopted the Constitution; and by their action alone can any new guaranties be inserted into it. One or more of the Southern States can test our true condition by proposing to amend the Constitution by such new securities as our safety and liberties require. If the Northern States accept of them, then the Union will be worth preserving. If they reject them, let the Union be dissolved."

While we admit that a single State could fornish a true test in this matter, yet we would have, as more satisfactory, the whole machinery of our see tion brought into play, as exerting greater moral power, and being more in harmony with the genius of our institutions.

We commend this matter to the journals and people of the South, though emanating from the renote District of Spartanburg. It will have the nerit of being regular and orderly-and, uninfluened by the stings of political defeat or present fears of losing power in the councils of the country, such action will show the scatled determination of the South to maintain her rights, and sit in security under her own vine and fig tree.

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT.

The grand jury of Charleston, fall term, 1856, make sundry important presentments. Among them are the following, in which the whole State has much interest, viz:

The evils of having two days in which to hold the sual elections-recommending one only.

The delay of important business by the increasing number of frivolous cases now claiming the attention of the courts; and recommend four terms in on, or an additional judge.

A revision of the criminal laws, and an abridgement of the right to traverse for misdemeanors. The law's delay, civil and criminal, is regarded a great grievance, and calls for prompt remedy. It further suggested, that every district is entitled to the efficient administration of justice at the cost of the State, but that no such provision at present

A codification and arrangement of the statute laws of the State is urged; as, from the want of these, learning and experience are alike set at defiance, and no security is afforded to the interests or roperty of the citizen. In illustration of the nessity of this codification, the jury allege (what may be true for aught we know) that a large body of laws are of force whose enactment by the Purliament of England embraces a period of time beginning almost with the Norman Conquest, and reaching down to 1709, and of which even the judges on

But how can it be otherwise? SPARTANBURG COURT.

The fall term of our court closed on Saturday night, leaving nearly the whole civil business unatended to. Judge Whitner, we understand, will report the state of the dockets to the Court of Ap peals, together with the fact that our Court House s unfinished, and no suitable building can be had in which to sit during the severe weather of winter and leave the question of calling an extra court to the discretion of that body. As the new Court House will probably be ready for occupation in the spring, it is probable that an extra court may be called shortly anterior to the next regular term. The sessions business was very heavy, employing nearly the whole time of the court. On Saturday sentences were passed upon the following persons, who were convicted of the offences named: B. F. Rhodes, for negro trading, 6 months' imprisonment and a fine of $20. B. F. Rhodes, same offence, 4 mothus and $20

He was found guilty, and sentenced to be hauged on the 1st Fri-

DARLINGTON - We learn from the Flag that Jas. P. Brown and James Layton, who were trice for murder at the recent term of the court for that District, were convicted of manslaughter; the former sentenced to one year's imprisonment and a fine of five hundred dollars, and the latter to imprisonment for three months.

In the Senate a resolution was offered by Mr Mazyek, and passed without opposition, calling on the President of the Blue Ridge Railroad Company in South Carolina for a statement of the stockholders in that company, the amount paid in by each, and sundry other information in regard to it, and also with reference to the Tennessee River Railroad, and the Charleston & Tennessee Railroad. No further business of importance was transacted, and on Tuesday afternoon both branches of the Legislature adjourned.

Since Tuesday night election returns from different States have been slowly coming in. Returns generally indicate the election of "Buck and Breck" by a respectable majority. On Saturday is was supposed that Buchapan had received 169 votes, Fremont 114, Fillmore S, and 4 votes (those of California) were counted doubtful. Returns received since then make the vote of Tennessee (12 votes) and that of Indiana (13 votes) doubtful. Both has gone for Filmore and the other for Fremont, Buchanan will have 144 votes only-lacking three of an election. Returns are vet to be received from California, and her vote may settle the questionfar as a choice by the Electoral vote is concerned Maryland gave Mr. Fillmore over 7,000 majority. New York was carried by Fremont to the tune of 50,000 majority. Corron.—The market closed on Monday with estes of 75 bales at 10½ a 11½. On Thesday the trade were in possession of the advices brought out by the steamer Canadian, and holders realized an advance of an ½ in sales. The transactions however were limited, in consequence of holders demanding a higher range of figures, to 175 bales at 10½ a 11½.

On Weduesday 280 bales changed hands at 10½ a 11½. On Thursday the advices of the steamer Canada were received. The Canada brought Liverpool dates to the 25th ult., reporting the Cotton Market active at an advance of ¼ a ¾d, with sales of the week amounting to 130,000 bales; of these 90,000 were a mounting to 130,000 bales; including 365,000 American.

him on more and more in the duties of religion. It was a subject to which the pleasures of this world were of minor consideration.

His life was spent in the same community, having lived and died at the old family residence. By his moral and christian life he gained the kind feelings and interest of many warm and devoted friends. He was an honest man—regardful of truth and correct dealing in all his worldly transactions.

In May last he took the dropsy, which prostrated him upon a bed of sickness, where he remained most of the time up to his death. He bore his afflictions through like with great fortitude, perfectly resigned to the will of God. Oft-times through the silent watches of the night, when the most excrutiating pains picreed his frame, he would be heard praying, and beseeching the Lord to have mercy on him. He exercised much patience. About the last week of his stay in this world of affliction he was devoid of speech. He was conscious of his situation, and perfectly calm. Toward the close of his situation, and perfectly calm. Toward the close of his life, he folded his hands upon his breast, and took a farewell look at those around his bed side. A tear was seen tracing its way down his cheek, and he closed his eyes, as though he was asleed. In a short time he breathed out his life sweetly there.
